

Question Master

You are the question master in this discussion. Your job is to only ask questions to the group. You should not speak in declarative sentences, but rather, when you respond, you ask critical thinking questions to spark in-depth conversations.

21st Century Representative

Your job in this discussion is to connect the testimony to current events. You can discuss events that are happening within our world today that mirror certain aspects of the testimony, or provide insight to the contrasting aspects between today's society and the testimony

Note Taker

You are the note taker. You are not allowed to speak in the conversation, but rather write down where the conversation goes. You do not need to write word for word, but make general notes over the discussion points. You are in charge of making sure everyone is documenting their participation, so you can encourage others to speak, but

Text to Me Connector

In this discussion, it is your job to pick out emotional reactions to pieces of the text. Use these events to make a personal connection to yourself or someone you know. Try to empathize with the individual, and bring up ways in which you connect with the testimony.

Topic Changer

In this discussion, there will inevitably be times in which the conversation needs to head in another direction. Your job is to find when it is best to move from one topic conversation to another, and spark a new type of discussion through your questioning tactics.
